Junior Sailing Second Session 2012

This week at HYC:

As the Beachpoint Overnight Regatta looms in the distance, some of our oldest sailors bunkered down this week for the JSA Navigation Test this past Monday, a 2 hour long exam calling on all the skills and knowledge they have of the sport. While we anxiously await for the results to come in, we're confident in the hard work they've all put in, and sure that their race will more than make-up for all the sleepless nights and cramming sessions they've endured along the way

Tuesday's Photo Day was a great success, and we were able to grab some great action shots of all our sailors out around Goose Island. We'll be having those shots made into a slide show for our Awards Night, August 10th, and copies will be available for everyone to take home with them as tokens of your child's time here at HYC.

Wednesday and Thursday brought some great chances to explore Pea Island and take a trip to Half Moon Beach—both excellent spots for some sun, sand, and relaxation.

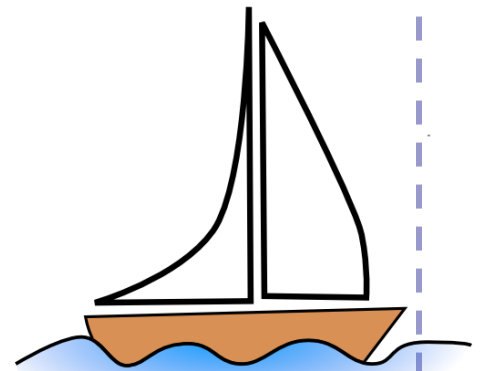

Ready

And this Friday, we were invited to participate in an impromptu regatta with the New York Athletic Club. Despite low winds and high heat, our sailors performed admirably and made it back just in time for pizza, ice cream, and some extra long swim time.

Sail

Our next and final week of camp begins this upcoming Monday, August 6th—and you know what that means: yes, my friends, just when you thought it was safe... SHARK WEEK. It's back. And it's better than ever. Join us in celebrating some of nature's oldest and fiercest—and terribly misunderstood—predators of the deep. We'll be having various shark-themed events throughout the week, so put on your fins, sharpen your teeth, and get ready for a fun filled finale to another great summer at HYC!
